Caerphilly Castle.

Dominating an impressive 30 acre site, Caerphilly Castle is Wales' largest and Britain's second largest castle behind Windsor. This medieval fortress was built around 1268 by Gilbert de Clare. The design is based on a concentric ring of walls and an extensive ring of water defences and huge gatehouses. This mammoth stronghold remains a striking testament to the Anglo-Norman domination of the area and recently had a starring role in the BBC TV series Merlin.

The castle is located straight over the road from Caerphilly town. Having seen and photographed the castle inside and out, we will be free to explore the town, find the statue of Tommy Cooper who was born here, or seek out refreshment.

St Fagans

We will then spend the afternoon at St Fagans, Wales's most popular heritage attraction. Open to the public since 1948, the museum stands in the grounds of the magnificent St Fagans Castle and gardens, a late 16th-century manor house. Over forty original buildings from different historical periods have been re-erected in the 100-acre parkland, among them houses, a farm, a school, a chapel and a splendid Workmen's Institute.

Traditional crafts and activities bring St Fagans alive, in workshops where craftsmen still demonstrate their traditional skills. Their produce is usually on sale. Native breeds of livestock can be seen in the fields and farmyards, and demonstrations of farming tasks take place daily. St Fagans explores all aspects of how people in Wales have lived and worked, visitors gain an insight into Welsh traditions and lifestyles. The Welsh language can be heard in daily use amongst craftsmen and interpreters.

St Fagans is very interesting and recommended by many members and constantly changing with buildings added in recent years. A number of catering outlets exist across the site serving good, quality food which is cooked on site using local, Welsh products. Gwalia Tea Rooms is a traditional 1930's tea room serving light lunches and afternoon teas.

Unfortunately the main restaurant near the entrance is under refurbishment.
